SELF-EVALUATION

As a student in the joint cultivation program of English and International Law, I have the advantage of studying two majors. I not only learn the application of the English language but also receive systematic legal education, especially having a relatively comprehensive knowledge in the field of international law. I am capable of relying on my basic knowledge of law, coordinating and utilizing my language proficiency with the experience as an editor and organizer to complete all translation tasks, especially those related to legal English translation.
